69 responses

The overall rating given by the faculty on the curriculum is good by 40.6% of the faculty. Few of them rated it as average. Whereas 55.1% of them rated it as excellent. None of the faculty mentioned it as below average.

Suggestions from Faculty Side:

1. It should be more practical and analytical. like involving real time cases and field visit and study
2. Practical courses like business analytics should be more practically application rather than theory
3. More real-life case study. More class group discussion. More teaching about current company strategies... More problem-solving activities
4. Focus more on live project
5. Influence more upon giving practical skills and smart work rather influencing upon bookish language
6. Good quality projectors are required so that it results in better understanding.
7. Apply a more realistic approach while teaching and letting faculty know more about their respective field to go ahead. Provide guidance sessions more often.
8. To narrow the list of topics and important concepts can be given more detailed discussion
9. We must add unconventional topics and give more space to case studies and project based learning than relying heavily on text
10. Basics can be reduced to make space for recent trends and much more case studies in the curriculum
11. Some parts of syllabus shall be reduced and more focus shall be given to practical application of the subject
